

BC Liquor Social Checklist

19 things to check before you post — and 5 that get craft brands in trouble. For distilleries, wineries, and cocktail rooms in British Columbia.

This is a working studio checklist, not legal advice. Confirm paid campaigns with LCRB and Canadian alcohol advertising codes. The licensee stays the advertiser of record.

Before you film

- Confirm the business holds the right liquor licence for what you are showing.
- Anyone on camera is 19+. Prefer 25+ — it is the safer industry habit.
- No minors in frame, and no school / playground backgrounds.
- Location is allowed (private venue OK; street / parks may need a permit).
- No driving, boating, or operating scenes paired with a drink.
- No contests that give away liquor as a prize.
- Shot list does not treat drinking as the hero moment.

On set

- If people appear with liquor in a venue ad, put food in the same frame.
- No intoxicated acting. No “one more shot” energy.
- Product claims come from the client. No health, wellness, or sleep claims.
- Keep pours modest. Full tables of empties look like excess.

Before you publish

- 19+ on screen or in the caption.
- No “drink more / party hard / liquid courage / you earned this binge”.
- Do not sell alcohol as the price of status, sex, or belonging.
- Captions do not dare people to over-consume.
- Paid partnership / sponsored label if a brand paid.
- Client wrote “approved” on the cut (email is enough).
- Paid ads: 19+ targeting + geo set. Organic is not an excuse to be sloppy.
- Unlicensed pages are not posing as a store with brand + price + buy-now.

The five that actually get brands in trouble

- Kids in the tasting room behind a cocktail. Reshoot. Do not crop and pray.
- Health halo. “Botanicals that heal” is a claim. Botanical flavour is not.
- Drink-and-drive adjacent. Keys, cars, boats, ski lifts next to a pour.
- Giveaways of bottles. Alcohol-as-prize is a different legal problem.
- Unlabelled paid posts. If they paid, say so. Fines are uglier than a #ad.

After you publish

- Hide comments from accounts that look underage.
- Save the export + caption in a dated folder. Audit trail matters.

Want this done for you?

Stillwork films a $1,200 CAD pilot (3 hours, 8 videos, 8 stills, captions, this checklist applied) for BC craft brands. Monthly Still Pack is $2,200. Email chuanheng2013@gmail.com with the bottle you are proudest of.

© Stillwork · British Columbia · Not legal advice · We do not sell alcohol. Sources in spirit: Canadian Code of Advertising Standards, CRTC / alcohol ad practices, BC LCRB advertising expectations. Have counsel review paid campaigns.